

Anchor Point MOTORHOMES Guide to DUBLIN

Even after the briefest of visits, you'll be hard-pressed not to be enchanted by the Dubs wit and sense of humour. From modern high rise buildings in the developing docklands meander across the Liffey via the ha'penny bridge and step into the old Dublin town of Temple bar with cobble stone streets and soak in the atmosphere. The list of places to go is endless from Croke park, Dublin Zoo, Trinity College, Dublin Castle, Guinness Storehouse and museums galore. ENJOY!

Sandymount Strand

Sandymount Strand offers good parking by the Martello Tower with miles of seaside frontage & good food.

Dunlaoghaire Harbour

Certainly worth a visit with two impressive victorian piers and great options for food, parking for motorhomes only permitted at the west end of the harbour.

Sandycove

Head south to the James Joyce Tower and museum at Sandycove and we dare you to finish your Dublin Bay tour by joining the famous 40ft swimmers at Ireland's most well known bathing spot.

Dublin's Fair City

Packed with history, character and charm, Temple bar just beyond the ha'penny bridge has a magnificent selection of quirky boutiques, and cultural landmarks such as the Art gallery, the Irish Film institute and the Olympia theatre including a host of pubs and restaurants with a very distinct old Dublin feel. If you are a fan of Bono and the Edge, head for their Clarence Hotel for some lunch, a pint, cocktail or afternoon tea.

James Joyce and Ulysses fans are in for a treat at Sweeney's Pharmacy in Lincoln Place, which is described extensively in the Ulysses novel. The interior remains relatively unchanged to this day and there are daily readings from the works of the World's most famous author which can be enjoyed by both novices and hardcore fans alike.

Dublin by Campervan

It's no secret that parking in Dublin city can be a challenge even at the best of times. Some motorhome owners use the Park and Ride service, but note that it's best to check in advance as spaces can be a tight for larger motorhomes. For more secure parking we recommend booking into a campsite in Dublin and using public transport to get in and out of the city. For example the Camac Valley Tourist Caravan and Camping park is well located with decent facilities and has a Dublin City Hop-on Hop-off tour bus service at the site.

Malahide Castle

For daytime touring Dublin Bay delivers for all ages. Starting North at Malahide Castle, it makes for a great family day out. Home to generations of the Talbot family over 800 years, reported ghost sightings throughout the ages repute it as being one of Ireland's most haunted castles. All in all a great place to visit with stunning walled gardens, childrens playgroud and decent parking.

Malahide Castle

Howth Head

Dublin bay has some of Ireland's most stunning scenery comparable with atlantic way highlights, so don't miss out on the chance to take a hike along the breathtaking Cliff path at Howth Head. Only 12km south of Malahide, it has 5 different routes to choose from. A feed of fish & chips after, - and you'll think you've died and gone to Heaven. Parking at the harbour is not permitted but there are other spaces nearby.

years to become a Unesco Nature reserve. Teaming with wild life it's ideal for leisurely strolls and has become a hub for kite surfers.

Bull Island

A short drive will take you to Man made Bull Island and Dollymount Strand which has evolved over 200
